SUMMARY

Pushkin Army Barracks and Training Area Pavlovsk is located 5.4 kilometers (km) south-east of Pushkin, on the southern edge of Pavlovsk (Figure 1). Pushkin Artillery School and Barracks is 4.4 km northwest of the installation.

The facility contains 298 acres which are divided into 4 separate secured areas, 2 very small secured storage sections, and a separate small-arms range. The main part of the installation contains 20 administration/barracks buildings, 32 barracks/support buildings, 27 support buildings, 21 storage buildings, 17 vehicle storage/maintenance buildings, 3 dispatch sheds, 2 athletic fields, 2 small-arms ranges, and a driver-training course. An administrative area is located 1.4 km to the northwest and contains 11 administration buildings/barracks, 5 support buildings, 1 warehouse, and 2 underground POL tanks. Ammunition storage is located between the above areas and consists of 2 ammunition storage buildings, 2 security structures, and 5 possible ammunition storage buildings. South of the main part of this installation is an unidentified secured area containing 3 buildings, 1 of which is secured. Adjacent to this area is a secured area containing 2 buildings. Two separate, secured storage areas, each with 1 storage building and a small-arms range, complete the installation (Figures 2 and 3).

This installation appears large enough to house a major unit.

This area was covered on KEYHOLE missions between [REDACTED]. Comparative analysis revealed continued usage and little, if any, seasonal variation.
